Class of '80 has class

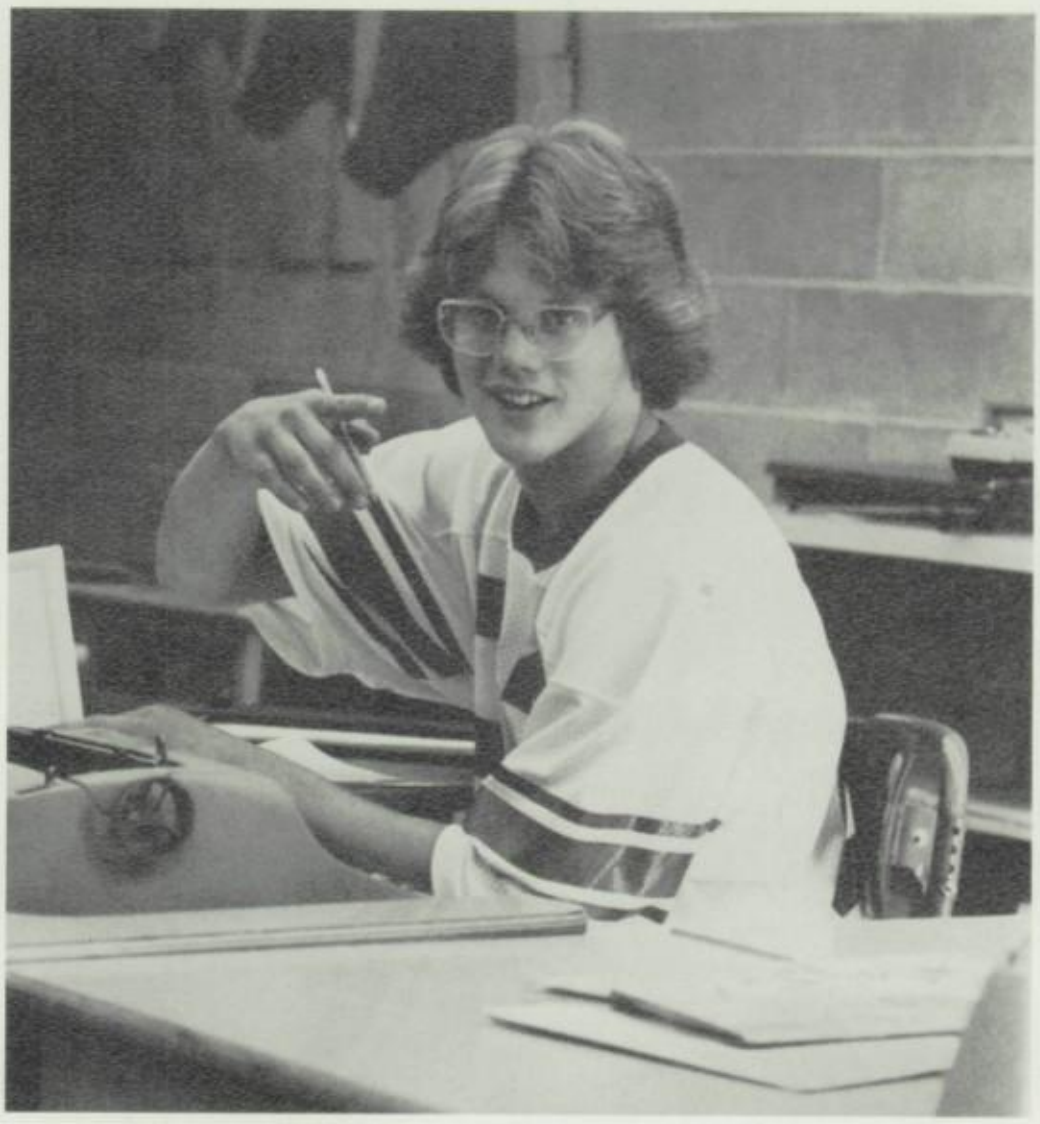
As the members of the class of 1980 end their three years at Newport, they can look back when it all started. They were the sophs, but even then there was something different about them.

The class of '80 started making a name for themselves even then. Memories of ceiling tiles, parties, food-fights, exams, radiators, sunflower seeds, graffiti and Homecoming victories began the difference.

As their junior year came to a close they became one. During their senior year some days they thought they'd never make it to the end. Now as the class of '80 prepares to leave Newport, they will be remembered as "the class with class."

1. Vice-president McQ, Secretary Big K, President Middle Clifford and Treasurer Curds, worked their N.A.s off for the Senior Class.

In Memory of Doug Brown



Those of us who knew Doug will think of his easy-going "Derby" personality and the good times we shared.
He will be remembered also for his scholarly and athletic achievements, along with his enthusiastic participation in extra activities at Newport. In the hearts of your friends– Thanks, Doug, for the memories.

Football attitudes add force

To re-cap the season of the 1979-80 football team, you must look beyond their win/loss record. The Knights finished the season winning 4 games and losing 5, each game being a close battle to the end.

According to Coach Bill Bloomer, each player put forth a winning effort. Excellent senior leadership helped the younger players as well as making the practices and games enjoyable.

Coach Bloomer added the fact that the 1979-80 football team was "super to coach", not only because of the team as a whole, but also because of individual attitudes.

The special awards were given to: Jeff McShane for Captain, Kirk Faulkner for Inspirational, Greg Kosanke for Most Improved, Brent Bahrenburg for Best Tackler, and Matt Leishman for Best Blocker.

1. Coach John Fullerton gives instructions to the players.

2. The players tensely watch their teammates.

3. Newport shows power on the line of scrimmage.

4. The Knights make a great tackle and gain possession.

5. With great force, the Knights make yardage.

6. Newport's defense brutally stops the other team.

7. Both teams show their power but the Knights win out.

8. Head Coach Bill Bloomer proudly watches his team in action.

Golfers end season with Medalist win

The golf team completed another successful season with a 13-2 record and a springtime berth in the state championships. After finishing with an 8-2 record and a disappointing third place standing in KingCo, the Knights earned their way to state by winning the Medalist Tournament at Snohomish Golf Course. The Knights also placed four golfers in the top ten at Medalist. Junior Rob Green and Senior Craig Moffat tied for eighth, while Seniors Carl Rigney and Rick Garber took third and first, respectively.

The girls' golf team had an opportunity to compete in several matches, and they came out with an excellent 4-0 record. This marked the first season the girls have had the chance to compete interscholastically.

Coach Bill Green was happy with the outcome of the season, although he would have liked to have added a second KingCo title to the second consecutive Medalist victory.

Athletes run for fun

If running is your thing, then Cross Country is your sport. It's a great way to condition your body for the strenuous winter activities and basically staying in shape.

Practices consisted of seven to ten miles daily in preparation of the 2.5 mile course competition. People even started running in the summer to get ready for the season.

Manager Tracy Britz and Coach Marshall Virgil were the backbone of the 40 membered team.

Winning the Yakima Sunfair Invitational and placing fourth in KingCo, the girls had an excellent season. Seniors Kathy Goolsby, Corinne Milligan, Alyson Coote and Junior Peggy Robinson were the more outstanding runners.

The boys also did well by placing 3rd at the Sunfair Invitational and 2nd in KingCo. Juniors Mike Szymanski, Todd Watson and Senior Charlie Crane were the strong runners for the guys.

According to athlete Alyson Coote, the team was very compatible and hard working. She felt everyone had a good time working together.

We did it again

The Girls' Swim Team did it again. They were our State Champs, with a record of 8 wins and no losses. Before the girls became State Champs they first had to win the District Title. After this win they were able to compete for a top spot in the King-Co League.

For the second year they successfully won King-Co and sent 14 swimmers and 2 divers to State. They won by such a large margin that they doubled the second place score. Their coach, Jack Ridley, was very proud.

Tennis lobs to victory

Overhead smashes, winning volleys and superb groundstrokes resulted in an 8-2 record for the girls' tennis team, losing only to Mercer Island and Bellevue.

"We tried to top last year's record, but we weren't disappointed to tie it," said Mr. Jack Wilson, coach.

Three sophomores, Melissa Haugland, Anne Gibbons and Paige Severson, challenged each other for numbers one, two and three varsity singles. The fourth spot was alternated.

The first doubles team was Senior Mary Gibbons and Junior Beth Sehrer. Challenging them were seniors Natalie Nelson, Crystal Pfeiffer and Colleen Towey, and juniors Dana Fischer and Jill Sanborn, all of whom worked alternately as partners.

Natalie Nelson was voted as team captain and had the best match record of 9-1. Most inspirational was Junior Betty Tai and most improved was Sophomore Teri Galvagno.

New coach does well

"My main objectives were to establish myself as head coach and to take over the program successfully," stated new head coach Kathy Hutton. The volleyball team ended its season with a 7-3 record, placing them third in KingCo. Coach Hutton felt their creditable outcome was due, in part, to an enlightening summer volleyball camp she attended, during which attributes of winning volleyball play were stressed.

The volleyball team's strong points included receiving the serve and spiking. Returning seniors Lisa Bauman, Patti Brabec, Lori Eken and Sue Thompson formed the nucleus of the team and co-captains Lori and Sue shared their skill and enthusiasm with all team members.

To heighten team spirit, several potlucks were held during the season and team t-shirts were purchased with money earned from a car wash. Everyone involved felt the season was a successful one.

Young team gains experience

With no returning lettermen, Newport's Boys' Basketball Team had a season that was to be expected. With the inexperience of the team, the main goal of the coaches this season was to let everybody play to gain experience and let the "cream rise to the top."

Because they were in the Crown Division, the Knights played against some of the toughest teams in the KingCo Region. The team, filled with determination, according to Coach Fran Drake, "Kept one of the best attitudes of all of Newport's teams towards practicing and playing."

Coach Drake also added that, "The fans demonstrated support and respect for the team throughout the season."

Girls gain prestige

Any other girls' basketball team might have been laughed off the court, but Newport's girls returned this year to show how basketball is really played.

Seniors Crystal Pfeiffer, Annette Duvall and Gayle Peters were boasted as some of the best players in the league. Pfeiffer was the best shot in Newport's girls' basketball history, as Duvall and Peters both claimed the positions of excellent guards.

Although there were some outstanding players, the team cooperated to gain many plays which would have been impossible to accomplish if they had worked as individuals. This cooperation brought about a 12-won, 3-loss record for the league, which placed them second.

Gradually the girls' basketball team had gained more spectators, which "have found Newport's basketball to be very exciting." Coach Larry Land added, "There . . . (was) . . . a lot of good play."

Wrestlers gain experience

The wrestling team was composed of six sophomores, eight juniors, and just one senior. The team only had one person in each weight class, so there was no incentive to lose weight. There were not enough guys turning out to force them into their own weight class. Paul Greer explained that if he had lost ten pounds, he could have wrestled in the 105 pound weight category and he would have had a better chance of winning a match. The season didn't go as well as the coach had expected. In order to be competitive in wrestling, there is a need for depth in each weight class.

Next year's team, however, is expected to be stronger. The juniors and seniors will have the experience they need to win, and some good junior high teams will be moving up to the Newport ranks. Coach Dexter Beckstead's final comment was, "next year."

Dedication makes a gymnast

Newport's gymnastics team gained quite a reputation with its five win, and four loss record.

With only three seniors leaving, this young 15 membered team showed much potential.

First year coaches Nan Duran and Shauna Casey were quite pleased with the team's obvious strength, grace and creativity. Seniors Lisa Beasely, Krystal Blatter and Randi Boster were the backbone of the team with Sophomores Marla Casey and Laura Whitworth ready to carry on the tradition. Although disappointment was shown in their placing 7th at KingCo, manager Laurie Farnham felt with a little more work, next year's team should place higher with a good chance at Regionals.

The dedication and painstaking efforts involved in the creation of routines was extremely entertaining and exciting in watching this sport.

As in past years, the boys' tennis team had another strong season. Good skill and determination made the team one of the best in the league. Top singles and doubles players included Seniors Kris Filion, Mike Leong, Gary Marshall and Barry Dougan; Juniors Scott Rerucha and Dave Spearman; and Sophomore Chris Pearson. Chris was ranked third in the 18-year-old and under in the Northwest. Mr. Bob Cleland commented, "He's only a sophomore, but he's easily number 1. He's terrific." Competitive spirit helps Knights win

Coming off a second place finish in KingCo in 1979, the 1980 varsity baseball team looked strong and very competitive.

The baseball season began on March 1 with the 57 team hopefuls going through rigorous training. Thirty players made the teams and started preparing for the first game against Davis, at Yakima, where the Knights won 6-4.

The varsity team practiced between two and three hours every night. They played a schedule of 24 games, including 9 non-league games and 15 league games. During pre-season play the Knights traveled to Wenatchee for the Wenatchee Valley Tournament where they won 3 out of 3 games. At the end of pre-season play the Knights were 9-0. The Knights also won their first league game against Inglemor 10-2.

This year the team had four returning lettermen from last season—Scott Anderson, Jeff McShane, Bill Moore, and Buddy Munn.

Coach Bob Albo felt this year's team had a great attitude and much talent. He said, "With the younger team members gaining more experience and developing as players, we could be a very competitive team."

Boys dribble to victory

"We always have a good team," said Senior Bob Folie. This year's boys' soccer team was very powerful; their spirit and cooperation led them to another great season.

The returning players faced the new coach, Doug Kretz. He had a new formation in mind, a four-two-four, which was difficult to adjust to. They lost the first two games, but once they became accustomed to the new style, their scoring ability greatly improved.

Strong players were Junior Alan Sjolie and Seniors Mark Rutledge and Troy McKinney. Next year's team has good potential, including Sophomore Phil Carson and Juniors Buddy Paxman and Stefan Cobb.

Hard work pays off for girls

The season started well for the girls' soccer team with the help of the new coaches Betsy Wareham and Q Glaze.

This was Wareham's first year as head coach and she really liked working with Newport. "The team is great. They have a lot of team spirit, and that really makes the difference," she said. She also commented that there was a little room for improvement, but mostly it was all very high calibre playing.

The girls had a lot of dedication to their team. They practiced every day after school and some weekends.

With the help of the new coaches and the hard work of the girls, Newport was a hard team to beat.

Boys race with the wind

Boys' track had a very successful year. Even though the team was young and inexperienced, they showed outstanding enthusiasm. Newport's team was well-rounded, not having many weaknesses.

Mr. Bill Green, head coach, commented, "The team works hard and they display a lot of enthusiasm and spirit." Coach Green was assisted by Ms. Sue Monda, Mr. Mike Ritch and Mr. Larry Hitchcock.

Good attitudes breed victories

Eighty candidates came out for track this year. Coach Bill Green said that the girls' good attitudes boosted the team's victories. The girls' track team had a good schedule which included three home meets.

Senior Alyson Coote and Junior Peggy Robinson were the girls' strong points in distances. Another strong point was Junior Kathy McGovern in the 440 and relays. Junior Kay Poppe in sprints and Junior Kathy Newton in shot and discus helped the team to their victories.

The coaches were Mr. Bill Green, Mr. Mike Ritch and Mr. Larry Hitchcock. Former Newport student Sue Monda was assistant.

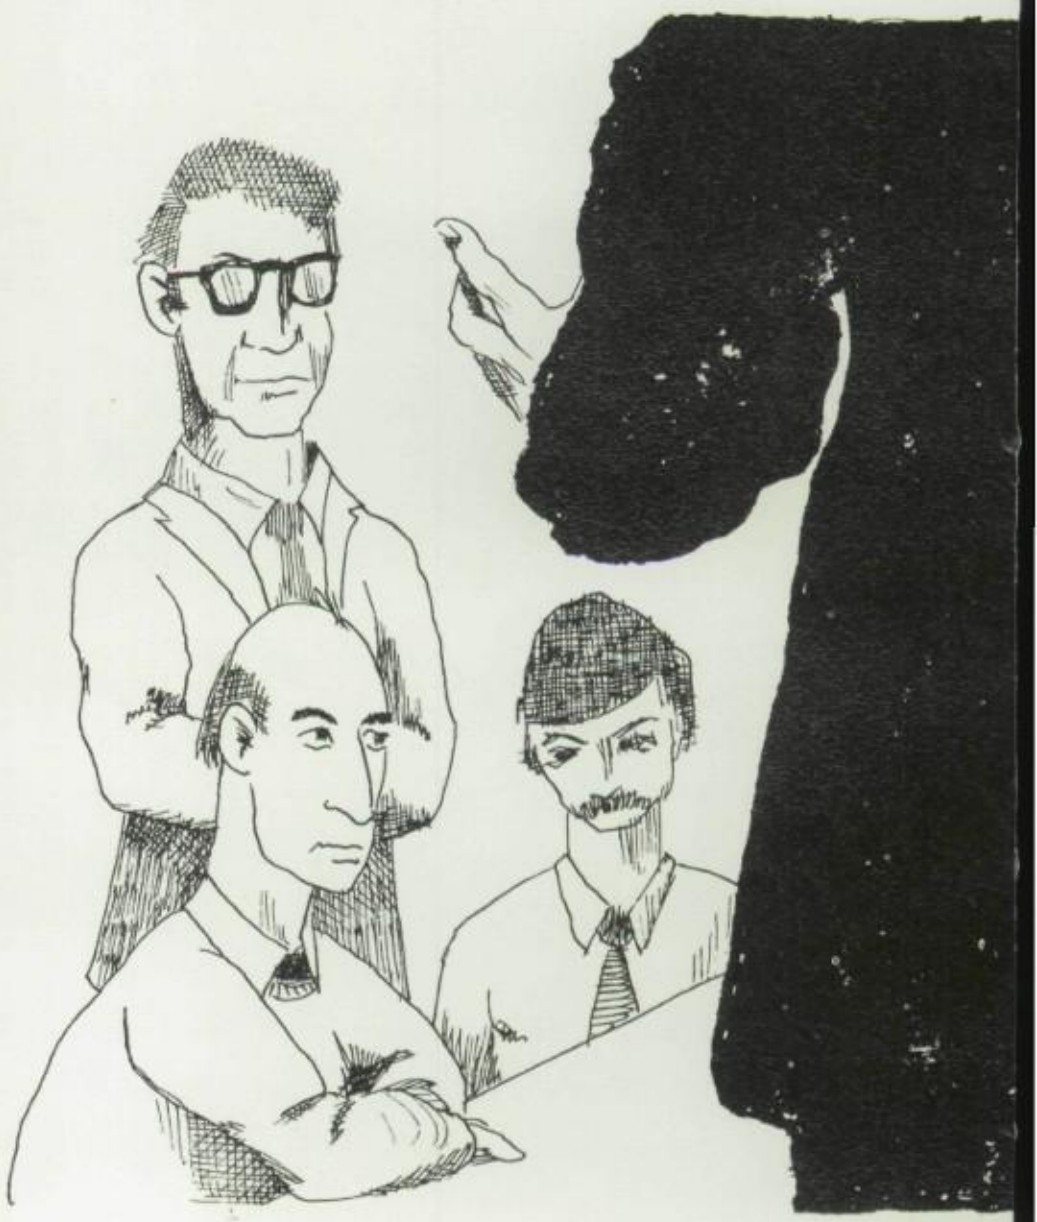
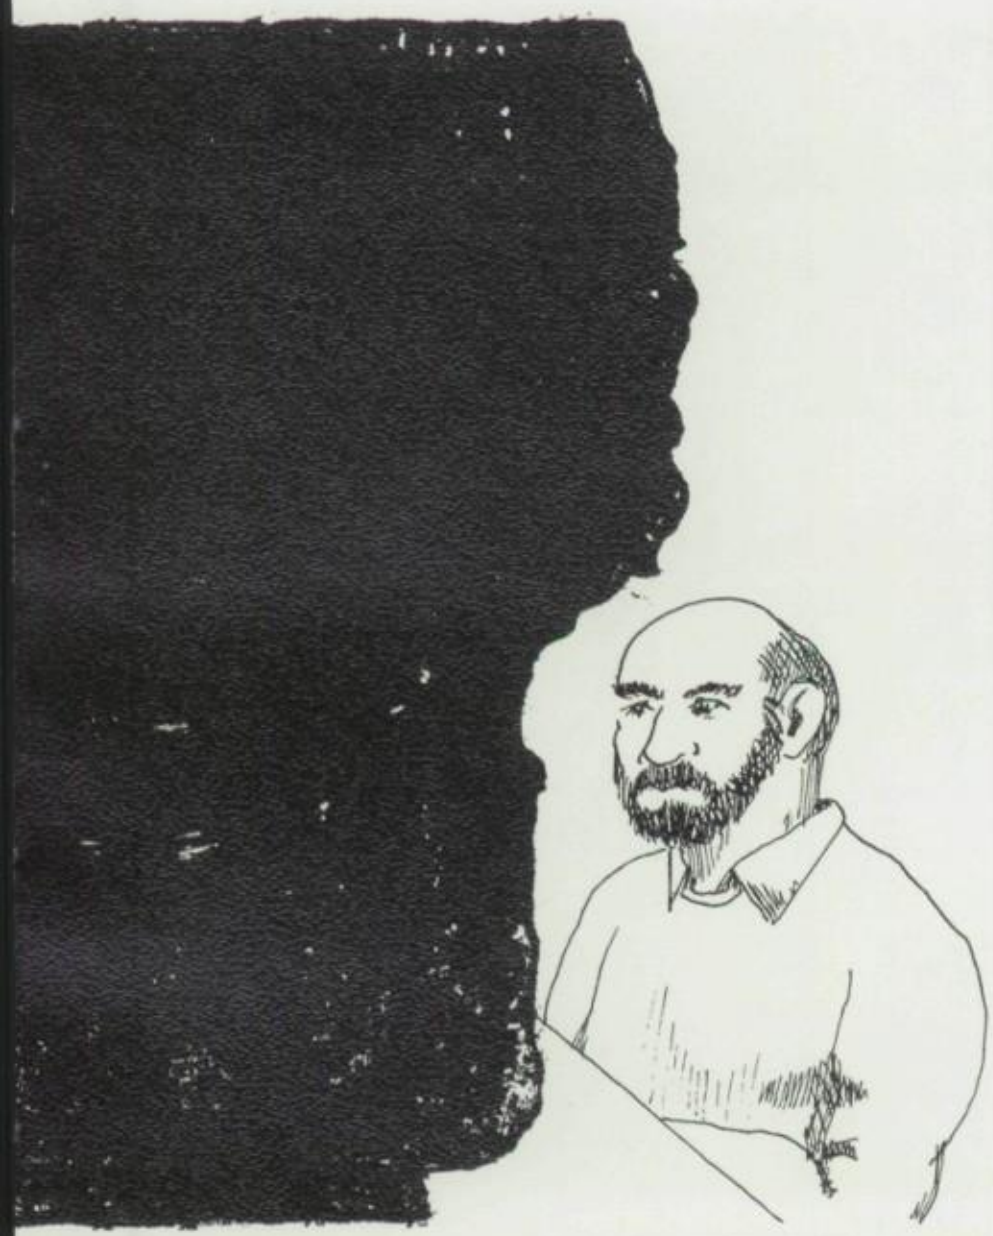
Faculty and Staff





Principals work for students

Over the years the administration has been busy not only with running the school, but with the students. The programs, "Let's Start The Difference," organized by Ms. Louise Lowry, seemed to motivate the students to help clean up and take better care of the school.

Mr. James J. Scott, principal, is not only confronted with problems, but he also has to solve them. One problem he worked on was the enclosure of the area between the gym and the lower commons, which will benefit the students during sports events. When asked how the year went, Mr. Scott replied, "We kept the ship on an even keel."

Counselors are helpful

Secretaries retain order

There are several people striving to make Newport run smoothly and efficiently. The secretaries perform many duties that range from senior graduation to ninth grade registration.

Two women in the Main Office, Ms. Sylvia Snow and Ms. Donna Carkeek, handle the administrative affairs of the principal and the assistant principals. They also train students to acquire valuable office skills. Ms. Elsie Galloway, registrar, handles all of the student school records. Ms. Sue Flemming is the person who determines if an absence will be excused or not. Ms. Janice LaMont is the business manager, and the school accountant is Ms. Miriam Yanoff.

Librarians aid students

This year's librarians enjoyed working with the students. They aided the students in finding and using materials in the library. They also referred students to other places if the materials were not available here.

The librarians were impressed with the students, their interests, the quality of their academic work, and the amount of reading they do for enjoyment.

Ms. Iris Fye, head-librarian, said, "We want everyone to feel welcome in the library."

Jr. officers raise money

The officers elected by the Junior class worked hard for their class. They helped their class raise money and spirit.

At the end of their sophomore year the Class of 1981 had $200. When the 1979-80 school year began they had gained $600 over the summer. The money was raised by the officers and members of the class from a rummage sale and car washes they held. During the school year they sold seat cushions at games, sponsored a dance and sold car stickers to increase their funds.

Jill Sanborn, president of the class, said, "I feel the Class of '81 has a lot going for it. Everybody is involved and we all work together as one. We all have tremendous school spirit and I'm certain that the Class of '81 will leave its mark on Newport High."

1. Melanie Barker, vice-president of the Class of '81, worked hard for her class.

2. Board of Control representative, Bob Folsom, worked just as hard as the other officers.

3. Junior Class Treasurer, Paul Reese, kept track of the Class of '81's earnings.

4. Jill Sanborn, president of the Junior Class, filled a responsible position well.

5. Becky Simonzi, B.O.C. representative, helped with projects for the Junior Class.

Math is better than ever

The variety of math courses that were available to students this year gave them many different areas to choose from, from Algebra to Calculus. In Mr. Ted Montgomery's opinion, quite a few students will pursue a math-related career.

There has always been a good math program and Mr. Montgomery said that it's because the teachers like to feel that the students have several different options, and they certainly did this year.

The Math Center was a great place to go to get help and it was used frequently by the students, who for the most part were taking math because they would need it for their future education.

Social studies expands

Students really took advantage of the social studies courses. The variety of offerings and unique teachers was the cause for such an interest.

Students educating their minds in world affairs and past history prevents an ill-informed society susceptible to a bad government, according to department head Jim Lockerbie.

Courses ranging from World Religions to Contemporary World Affairs gave students the opportunity to seek their interests fully.

With the loss of Mr. Ralph Hayes, who was on a sabbatical in Canada and Ms. Heidi Habersetzer in the SSRC, the addition of Mr. Bill Spieth and Mr. Alan Newman, with his background in teaching Eskimos, gave the students quite an educating experience.

1. A rare moment for the library is depicted by Junior Cindy Burnett attempting to get a book.

2. Trying to look interested seems to be somewhat difficult for Juniors Paul Greer, Sheena Nelson and Don Houghton.

3. Junior Linda Nelson shows Newport High what she had for lunch.

4. Something of interest has distracted Junior Mike Klein from his well-beloved studies.

Future found in language

Along with the well known teachers in the Foreign Language Department, there were three new faces that were seen. These teachers were Madame Irene Leggate and Madame Alice Holder, who taught French, and Senor Salvador Alferez, who taught Spanish.

The Foreign Language teachers taught the S.,W.,R.,L., method. This stood for speaking, writing, reading, and listening. Ms. Alice Savitch said, "Culture was also incorporated in with the basic study."

The new teachers have adapted to and enjoyed all of their classes. Madame Leggate was very impressed with the students. She said that the students were cooperative, competent, and creative. All of the teachers saw great potential in the students' futures. To sum it all up, Senor Alferez said, "The American student is the best student in the world!"

LRC provides services

Many students are sincere about studying, and they can be found in the Library using a lot of sources for their work. Ms. Iris Fye, one of Newport's librarians, was very impressed by students using many resources to achieve creativity in their work. The librarians were mainly interested in providing good service in helping students find the materials they needed.

Ms. Fye believed that students should use every opportunity to get a good education while they are young because what is not learned in high school almost always has to be learned later in life.

The Library increased its magazine subscriptions in order to allow students to use the magazines they wanted. The Library and Media Center tried to give the best services, whether it be in locating video tapes, books, or magazines. Ms. Fye also added that Newport had a fun group of students.

1. Junior Bart Kropelnicki loves the attention the camerman gives him.

2. Paul Greer, junior, manages to keep awake during class.

Juniors stay active in P.E.

Teaching and improving skills and having fun were the main objectives of the P.E. Department. Classes were geared towards the improvement of fundamental skills, but the main concern was to give the student an enjoyable alternative to academic classes. Students were surveyed each quarter to find out what classes were most popular. Those classes showing the most interest were offered accordingly. "Carry-over value" was also important to the teachers, especially Mr. Don Hershey. He liked to teach activities that the students are able to enjoy after leaving Newport.

Music is an inspiration

The Music Department, again, had an outstanding program this year.

The department provided music experiences for everyone with courses like Band, Orchestra and Choir, in hopes that everyone would take advantage of his/her musical abilities.

Some of the objectives were to present each student with an opportunity to study the many areas of music, challenge more advanced students, and provide musical study for those with no previous musical background.

For many, music has been a great inspiration, and everyone was encouraged to have taken advantage of Newport's music program.

Custodians lend a hand

How many times did you leave school for the day and at about 4:30 realize you forgot your math book with a final to study for? Who always saved the day by answering your frantic pounding on the hall doors?—the same seven men and two women who were responsible for maintaining and repairing the buildings, keeping up the landscaping, and cleaning up our messes.

Aside from their regular janitorial services, the custodians aided students in various other ways. Commonly they were seen helping some club member hang a sign or giving their experienced advice on setting up for such functions as pep assemblies, dances, and plays.

With such dependable and concerned people around, you can see why our school ran so smoothly and efficiently.

Secs keep Newport running

Today, secretarial responsibilities range further than the traditional typing, filing and dictation. This was especially true at Newport. The nine secretaries were a very intricate part of Newport, and most of their hard work went unnoticed.

The Main Office secretaries handled most of the administrative work. Their responsibilities included helping the principals, handling public questions and assisting teachers.

The business, attendance and registrar secretaries had more contact with students than did those in the Main Office. Their responsibilities included balancing the student A.S.B. accounts, enforcing attendance policies and keeping student records in order. Secretaries also helped out in the Counseling Center and in the Library.

1. Junior Randy Sikes searches the board for the next math assignment.

2. Junior Steve Tinsley waits patiently for the end of the period.

3. Junior Rowland Phillips listens intently to a neighbor.

Home Ec involves fun

The Home Economics Department, headed by Kathy Montgomery and Jean DeMocko, offered a wide selection of courses. Two of the classes included in the curriculum were sewing and Foreign and Gourmet Foods.

The sewing class taught the student the basics of fitting, choosing different types of fabrics, using a sewing maching and the actual art of sewing a garment together.

Foreign and Gourmet Foods dealt with a variety of unique and interesting foods. The students chose which country they wanted to study, and then did the research for it.

Both the sewing and cooking classes taught the students many new techniques, and each individual gained a new sense of confidence.

Spirit prevails

Did YOU dress up in crazy costumes for school during Homecoming Week? A surprising amount of spirit was shown as togas, spacemen, sleepers, farmers and many others invaded Newport.

As a first, all the events had points, which were added up for class competition.

Monday was Hat and Glasses Day, of which the juniors won. They also beat the sophomores in Powderpuff, 16-0.

Tuesday was T-Shirt Day, of which the sophomores won. The seniors beat the juniors in Powderpuff, 27-7.

Wednesday was Bizarre Clothing Day, of which the seniors won. That night was the Spaghetti Eating Contest, and the juniors chalked up another point. Following that, the sophomores prided themselves in winning the Volkswagen Stuffing Contest.

Thursday was Hick Day, and the seniors won. The bonfire was cancelled because of rain.

The big day finally came and the juniors were thrilled to win school colors, float and spirit chain competitions. The sophomores were delighted to win the skit, as were the seniors who won the halls.

Royalty reign

The game came out at a rainy end, losing to Issaquah, 21-14. The rain let up just long enough for half-time.

Saturday night the Homecoming Dance occurred, and a special dance was set aside for the royalty. Sophomore royalty were Cindy Myers and Kevin Coats. Junior royalty were Colleen Clifford and John Naab. Senior princesses and princes were Nancy Simmerly and Greg Kosanke, Carol Kuzeja and Doug Brown, and Laurie Farnham and Pete Kelleran. Queen and King were Rhonda Curdy and Scott McQuilken.

1. Carol Kuzeja and Doug Brown were Senior Class princess and prince.

Camelot pushes on

Camelot had a successful year with assorted activities such as Tolo, that went very well. The band United Flyte played outstanding music for the couples.

Besides Tolo, the Daddy-Daughter Dinner, Valegrams, Sophomore orientation and Senior Tea earned a lot of money for the club, and were a lot of fun for the student body. Officers Pam Olson, president; Beth Harvey, vice-president; and Jill Haye, secretary, worked together to bring unity to Newport.

1. Camelot President Pam Olson, Vice-President Beth Harvey, seniors, and Secretary Jill Haye, junior, attempt to keep order in an eventful meeting planning this year's Tolo.

2. Mary Meyer, pep cabinet member and Cindy Schilb, juniors and Dina Napoli, sophomore, are definitely enjoying the current Camelot meeting.

3. Two seniors, Eileen Cornelius and Sara Bolson, were very active in the Camelot activities this past year.

4. Many club members faithfully attend the weekly club meetings.

5. Ms. Barbara Olson and club members Mary Gibbons and Pam Olson, seniors, and Jody Shay, junior, helped decide if the Tolo programs were appropriate.

6. Junior Wendy Drury discusses the Tolo ticket sales.

7. Group planning is definitely productive. It was put into action quite frequently.

Drill team marches with precision

This year's drill team consisted of 32 girls. Seniors Nancy Simmerly and Jo Wagner were captains. The girls' advisor was Marsha Stuart.

Every day the girls practiced enthusiastically on their drills and performed at all home games.

Their main goal was state competition, which was held in March, in Wenatchee.

1. Drill Team forms a Newport "N".

2. Drill Team takes their place in the bleachers to cheer on the Knights.

3. Drill Team practices precision marching.

Cheerleaders keep the spirit

There were 10 cheerleaders this year. They worked very hard. Their efforts had shown at the pep assemblies; they were better and more peppy. This year the cheerleaders were very closely knit. The girls have changed many ideas. They had acrobatic stunts and their cheers were different and along with others, helped bring unity in Newport. The only junior on the squad was Denise Dixon who said, "We did a good job; we're one big family." Others on the squad were Seniors Krista Lawley, Brenda Blum, Janice McNeely, Kellanne Henry, Naomi Hara, Jayne Whitworth, D. J. York, Laura Villegas and Mary Irwin.

1. Janice McNeely, senior, and Denise Dixon, junior, try to raise the school's spirit.

2. Senior Laura Villegas shows her enthusiasm during Homecoming.

3. Get Down!!

4. Junior Denise Dixon, Seniors Mary Irwin, Brenda Blum, and Janice McNeely show precision in their cheering.

5. Seniors Kellanne Henry, Naomi Hara, and Laura Villegas give their support by helping at a boys' swim meet.

6. Helping keep the crowd cheering and yelling are Seniors Kellanne Henry and Brenda Blum.

7. Senior Mary Irwin gives a smile for the cheering crowds.

8. Naomi Hara, senior, leads the Homecoming crowd in a cheer, while Kellanne Henry, senior, keeps in time with last year's squad.

Snow break

Winter Vacation was extended this year due to weather conditions. Because of the constant snowfall, Newport was closed from January 8th through January 11th. Even though the students were mournful over the closing of school, they still managed to enjoy the beauty of a white world.

DECA prepares students

General Marketing and Distributive Education classes were designed with the idea that the students will graduate with something more than a high school diploma. The students in DECA prepared to leave high school by acquiring skills necessary for entry level in the career of their choice. Mr. Bob Lavery commented that, "Students work on organization, goal setting, career exploration, and successful operation of a business."

The club's activities involved its members with DECA students from other schools in putting on projects that involve the use of these skills. Certain members of the club attended local, state, and national conventions. DECA's charity was raising money for the Ronald McDonald House. The two classes operated the student store as a dynamic business.

DECA's president was Janelle Tomlan. Miles Ashley was vice president, Patti Kelly was secretary and Chris Cavanaugh was the treasurer.

Water Polo takes 2nd in State

Newport's Water Polo Team placed 2nd this year at the state championships. The all-state performers were Sophomore Gary Haslam, a forward, and Junior Tom Leanard, a goalie. Haslam was the leading scorer at the tournament.

The team consisted of 18 boys. The coach was former Newport student Paul Simmerly, and Co-captains were Seniors Charlie Crane and Brett Iverson. Most valuable players were Crane, Leonard, and Haslam.

They competed against teams which are officially recognized as varsity sports teams by their schools, but Newport has no official connection with water polo. They are planning on participating in the AAU Junior Olympic Nationals sometime in late July.

5. Gary Haslam sophomore, and Tom Leonard, junior, warm up before a big game.

6. The goalie, Tom Leonard, junior, splashes defensively toward the goal.

7. Juniors Todd Watson and Kirk Watari work on their passing skills.

8. Several guys wait before substituting into the current game.

StuCo apathy vanishes

Stu-Co, run efficiently by President Phil Kropelnicki, with the help of Vice-President Curt Balmer, Secretary Gina Griffin and Treasurer Jim Myers enjoyed a successful year. They had many tasks this year, some more difficult than others. Their main job was to decide where the A.S.B. funds would go to the separate activities and clubs.

This year was the best year as far as attendance at the Stu-Co meetings, and involvement of the student body. There was usually 100% attendance, and the apathy was at a record low.

1. President Phil Kropelnicki and Vice-President Curt Balmer listen attentively as Senior Charlie Crane presents a bill.

2. Senior Connie Haslam thinks seriously about different options.

3. The student representatives enjoy one of the weekly StuCo meetings.

4. Senior Kellanne Henry listens carefully to the speaker.

5. The reps give input and take notes.

Masochist at work

What makes debators masochists? Spending two-to-three hours a night on their files for the satisfaction of having the most information, dissolving opponent's arguments, studying over the summer at college institutions and dedication to be the best, but the present 25 students love it. Foreign trade was the topic they put this year's efforts into.

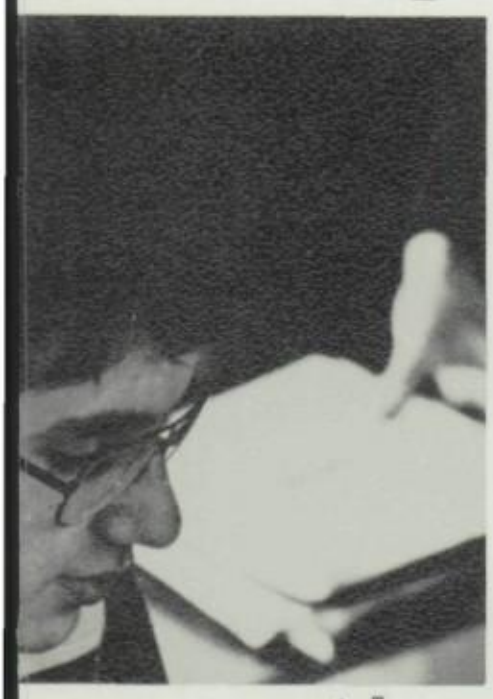
Debate appeals to the student interested in competition, current events and social studies, whereas Competitive Speech involves performing, impromptu and dramatic interpretation.

Pat Thomason, former debate coach, moved to the Counseling Center and Peter Bogdanoff became a very welcome addition for the debators. Students felt his teaching Interlake's debate team in addition to Newport's presented no conflict.

Fund raising projects throughout the year helped support their various trips to universities, including Lewis and Clark, Gonzaga and Western Washington.

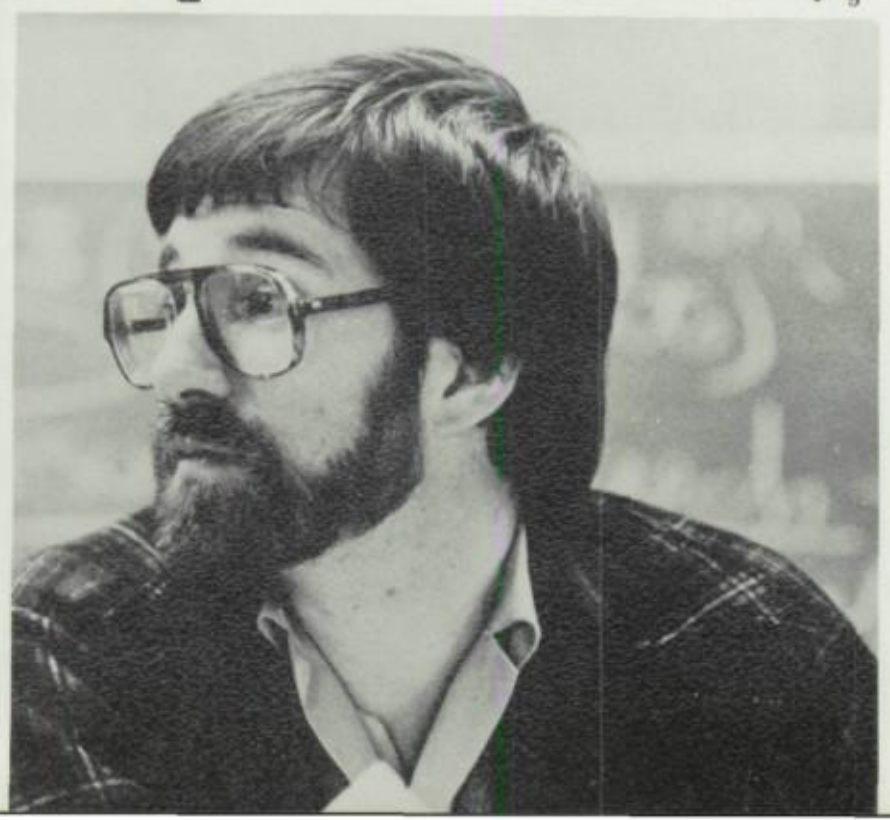
Overall, Mr. Bogdanoff was impressed with both teams' output and felt we had one of Washington's finest.

6. Seniors Alan Keyes and Dave Clark.



7. Chris Kelling, senior, listens attentively.

8. Senior Jon Fellows expounds on the virtues of his topic.



9. Mr. Peter Bogdanoff sparks interest.

Honor society begins

The Honor Society, a newly formed club for those with 3.5 or better grade point averages, had a successful year of improving the school.

Two of their activities were planning the Arts Week, and the student exchange within the district. The student exchange program made it possible for eligible students to go to another school for a short amount of time.

Cynthia Davis, president, worked hard to form the club, and along with Paul Reese, vice-president, Mary Miskimen, secretary, and Jeff Thiel, treasurer, put forth many hours to make the club a success.

1. The Honor Society members attend an early morning meeting.

2. Bill Moore and Stefan Cobb, juniors, listen to a suggestion by a fellow member.

3. Vice-president Paul Reese and Secretary Mary Miskimen bring order at the beginning of a meeting.

4. Ted Kirchhoff, advisor, adds a suggestion during a discussion about chapter projects.

SKY Club helps others

There exists a club that definitely cares about other people. It is the Special Kiwanis Youth Club, better known as SKY. With five to fifteen members, this club met every week and visited the Bellevue Terrace nursing home. Playing Bingo and planning other games and parties for the elderly were the major activities. According to club president Patti Bisch, "The self satisfaction you receive when you see the older people smile is what keeps you a SKY member."

The club advisor, Mr. Robert Mitchell, reported that, "SKY has capable people that I am very proud of."

5. SKY club members watch intently while a resident of Bellevue Terrace Nursing Home teaches them to crochet.

6. Junior Craig Foster chats with a lady at Bellevue Terrace during one of SKY's weekly nursing home visits.

7. Joan MacLean, senior, visits a friend at the nursing home.

8. SKY President Patti Bisch jokingly places a crocheted frog on Junior Craig Foster's head.

Orchestra refines skills

The Newport Orchestra was comprised of many talented individuals who enjoyed refining their skills as a group. Most of the 31 members, 19 of which were from Tyee, have been playing since grade school, and 4 of them were members of the Seattle Youth Symphony, so the group had a good background. The Orchestra was able to perform in numerous concerts throughout the year, such as the KingCo Festival and the KingCo Solo ensemble. Three students had the honor of being picked for the State Music Convention, which was a good reflection of the work of the director, Mr. John Cox.

1. The members of the school orchestra spend many hours preparing for their concerts.

2. A few cello players fiddling with their bows.

3. Peter Nielson, sophomore, waits for Mr. Cox to give the cue to begin to play.

4. Mr. Cox looks through his music so he can begin the class.

The beat goes on in Stage Band

An enthusiastic group of students met faithfully during Early Hour each morning to perform in the Stage Band. These already experienced musicians had the opportunity to play a variety of music, from jazz to rock. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Baily, the Stage Band played in various contests, including the Newport Jazz Festival and the KingCo Jazz Festival. For many of the students, the year was highlighted by a trip to Victoria in May to perform with many other bands from all over the west coast.

5. Catherine Weibe, sophomore, practices her piano.

6. Mr. Bailey tries to figure out who's playing the wrong note.

7. Kevin Murphy, senior, comes in with the low notes.

8. Russell Rosengreen, sophomore, and Todd Fiebig, junior, concentrate on playing the right notes.

Musicians are talented

"They're a good group of motivated and talented performers," enthusiastically stated Mr. Robert Bailey, band director, about the band members.

Using their musical talents, the band showed spirit by playing at football and basketball games. Their performances included three concerts, and they competed at a King-Co contest and in Victoria.

To raise money for their spring trip to Victoria, the band was involved in such activities as sponsoring a fall dance and selling jewelry, candles and holiday swags.

The whole band worked together to produce a successful music year. More of the performers than usuaul were chosen to go to All-state Band, a real honor.

1. The clarinets play the melody while the bassoons rest.

2. The percussion, trumpet and low clarinet sections are intent on playing the music well.

3. Glen Lane, senior, helps provide the band with a big bass sound.

4. Christie Hosking, sophomore, is hidden behind the tubas.

5. Dave Barr, senior, and the other trombones warm up before band.

6. Katie Alverson, junior, and Katy Brown, senior, lead the flute section with their great talent.

7. Mr. Robert Bailey, director, listens contemplatively to the band's sound.

Choir sings its way to success

Putting on the fall musical, "The Boyfriend," selling candles, and giftwrapping in Factoria Square Mall were all fund raising projects undertaken by the choir. The money earned went toward their spring tour to San Francisco. This concert tour involved singing all over the Bay Area.

Aside from their trip to San Francisco, choir held two other performances. Their production of "The Boyfriend" took the place of a fall concert and was very well received. Their Holiday Concert, held in December, was equally successful.

Choir consisted of many fine singers, but members were also selected for their ability to read music and blend their voices with others.

Vilnis Birnbaums, Susan Clifford, Beth Pitkin, Jane Tsuang and Roger Whipple all qualified for all-state competition, a record number for Newport.

"It's been very challenging and rewarding," stated choir director George Harshbarger. "It could easily have been our best sounding choir ever."

1. Before starting class, members of the choir can be found doing almost anything.

2. Individuals in choir share a joke or two between songs.

3. All choir members participate in daily practice.

4. Mr. George Harshbarger accompanies the choir on the piano during choir practice.

5. Members of the choir blend their voices to make their sound perfect.

6. Sophomore Dan Hoffman, Senior Frank Walker, and Junior Kevin Hodges take a break between songs.

7. Members of the choir gaze on in anticipation of another song to perfect.

8. The choir sings at their winter concert.

9. Choir practices daily to make their harmonizing flawless.

Ensembles join together

Teaching one music class is enough work, but how would you like to teach two in one period? Knight Sounds and Newport Singers met together and alternated working with Mr. George Harshbarger, director.

The Knight Sounds sing pop music. The Newport Singers is a madrigal group.

As the people in Sounds/Singers have many interests, such as Camelot, debate and sports, the groups were small. This gave Mr. Harshbarger the opportunity to give more individual attention.

He said the main objectives were to continue singing excellent music composed within the past five centuries, and to improve the quality of the groups.

1. Director George Harshbarger really isn't as mean as he looks.

2. Senior Vilnis Birnbaums tries to control his intense emotions over the song while sharing music with senior Steve Mack.

3. Singers are at a pause in their early morning practice.

4. Sophomore Doug Bell and Senior Andy Lloyd aren't too thrilled over singing at 8:00 in the morning.

5. Superb talent is exhibited by a mutual blending of exquisite voices.

6. Tammy Klevgaard, junior, was the group's dedicated pianist.

Choir's play is a success

"The Boyfriend" was the musical this year and it was a real success. It was done a little differently this year as opposed to other years. Instead of it being an all-school play, the Choir produced it and did an excellent job with the help of the director, Dr. Fred Meitzer.

The cast was a dedicated group as they showed in their practice turn-out every day after school. Half of the cast would practice one night, the other half the next night. All the time and effort that people put into "The Boyfriend" really showed at their four performances.

1. Vilnis Birnbaums and Beth Pitkin, seniors, are serious about their roles.

2. Kurt Richards, sophomore, and Julie Bradley, senior, sing a duet

3. Doris Mareno, junior, is reluctant to reveal her secret to some members of the cast.

4. Pete Kelleran and Sue Clifford, seniors and stars of the show, sing enthusiastically in the finale.

5. Roger Whipple, junior, and Sue Watanabe, senior, dance as they sing their parts.

6. Kurt Richards, sophomore, and his wife in the show, Janice Cannon, senior, have a dispute.

7. Julie Bradley, Steve Mack and Michelle Gaskin, seniors, obviously enjoy their roles.

8. Diana Fairbanks, senior, flirts with the guys at the beach.

9. Frank Walker, senior, shows off his magic abilities with the help of his assistants Pam Bedell, senior, and Amy Duvall, junior.

Fall play stresses drama

The production of "One Flew Over the Cuckoos Nest" was a dramatic, yet comical play set in an insane asylum. The characters were more difficult to portray because the play was not written for the high school level. Mr. Bill Eyman, director, felt that Newport's Drama Department could certainly handle it because last year's was a great cast and only a few actors graduated.

Mr. McMurphy, played by Senior Mark Maines, was a very intricate character. Mark deliberated, long hours, perfecting the outgoing McMurphy.

The remaining cast was filled out by many up and coming sophomores and juniors, many of whom had their first time on stage. Nurse Ratched, played by Senior Beth Pitkin, was a character that demanded attention as the dramatic counterpoint to the humorous antics of the rest of the characters.

This show was harder to put on technically, also, because of the difficulties presented by a running soundtrack and special lighting effects.

1. Senior Robert Folie and Junior John Naab mock (Chief) Ted Spieth, Junior.

2. The patients get a lecture from Senior Beth Pitkin, (Nurse Ratchet).

3. Senior Mark Mains (McMurphy) manages to persuade Senior John Hutchins, Senior John Van Arsdal, Junior Doug Thomas, and Sophomore Tim O'Brien into a bit of gambling.

4. Doug Thomas watches on in horror as Mark Mains tries to lift out the generator.

5. (Cheswick), Doug Thomas, receives his daily medicine from Beth Pitkin and Sharon Dorn, senior.

6. Tim O'Brien talks to Beth Pitkin in therapy while David Fox and Mark Mains look on.

7. Lori Schlosser, junior, sits and visits with Mark Mains.

Knightlife lunges onward

The Knightlife staff set a major goal of using their paper as an instrument to inform the Newport High community. The staff tried to put at least one paper out each month.

Regular features this year included Spotlite, NiteTime, KnightCap, Knightline, and P.H.E.W. But something new and exciting was added this year called Point/Counterpoint written by Seniors John Fellows and Herman Chien.

The job of the KL staff was to meet all deadlines and to write copy and headlines. Mr. Jack Wilson said, "The quality of writing has much improved over last year." The KL staff should be congratulated for a job well done.

1. Senior Chris Benis thinks about a topic for an article in the Knightlife.

2. Senior Kellanne Henry, editor, smiles as an idea comes to her head.

3. Senior John Hutchins, art editor, thinks with his tongue.

4. Senior Brett Anderson, opinion editor, listens to what is being said.

5. Senior Rich Fassio, photographer, smiles for his picture.

6. The Knightlife staff is busy at work.

7. Senior Randy Brown, feature editor, consults with an editor.

New staff brings new ideas

Teaching a new staff the basics of publishing a good yearbook proved to be a challenge for advisor Jack Wilson and only three returning members.

Students spent many hours preparing layouts, writing copy, and obtaining the right pictures for their pages. Upon finishing their various tasks, the staff turned their end results into the editors and advisor for approval before sending it to the publisher in Pasco, Washington. The staff went through many hard times, but everybody helped one another out as each deadline crept up.

Finally, distribution day came, and the staffers felt a sense of pride and accomplishment after seeing the completed yearbook.

1. Junior Cindy Schilb checks a page for the annual.

2. Anne Wells-Henderson, senior, types to meet her deadline.

3. Seniors Rick Garber and Martina Hiemstra prepare photos for senior pages.

4. Senior Terri Klett daydreams new ideas for her page.

5. Accolade co-editor Scott Smith takes a moment to gather his thoughts.

6. The annual staff busily works to meet a deadline.

7. Senior Tami Spencer works to complete a page for the annual.

8. Jack Wilson, advisor, and co-editor Naomi Hara check copy and layouts.

Sophs bring spirit

Beginning a new life this year, the Sophomore Class brought to Newport much enthusiasm and spirit. This was apparent in the number of sophomores who showed up for all of the pep assemblies and in the great amount of effort put into all sophomore sponsored activities.

The Sophomore Class Officers displayed many organizational skills and money-raising strategies which allowed the class to quickly overcome its debts.

Mr. Dale Boyer, class advisor, stated, "I'm pleased with the enthusiasm the sophomores exhibited during the preparation of Homecoming and the Homecoming events. The officers and committee members were great to work with, and they were very cooperative."

1. Sophomores Scott Cranston and Dan Cartan strut by the junior radiators.

2. Secretary Kathy Vanderzanden enthusiastically supported her class.

3. President Nikki Caden worked hard to organize the Sophomore class.

4. Treasurer Gwen Curdy worked hard on fund raisers and brought spirit to her class.

5. Vice President Kim Deasy supported her class well.

Biology begins with involvement

Involvement was the key to this year's biology program. The faculty undertook the task of rewriting the biology program, which is different from the traditional course taught in other high schools.

The course emphasized an increase in laboratory time which included many alternate learning activities. It was self-paced, which increased student responsibility for his or her own progress.

Opportunity for optional activities for students who had set high goals for themselves was available.

The teachers seemed to feel that with this increase of student participation, the course has become more enjoyable and well liked.

Sophomores write on

The English Department set many new goals for the sophomore English classes.

First, the major emphasis was placed on writing, thus the name Writing One comes about.

Secondly, three classes were combined together to make one team taught class. This added variety for the teachers and the student's schedule.

Thirdly, the students had to take total responsibility for their actions. If they didn't follow through on an assignment, they had to face the consequence of failing the class.

When asked why the changes occurred, Sharon Cruikshank, an English teacher, remarked, "The class didn't have any continuity before. All of the teachers taught something different. The way we have it now, all of the classes cover the same thing on the same day."

The majority of the students enjoyed the class, and they benefited from it, also.

1. Sophomore Michelle Carter listens intently to a friend.

2. Sophomore Beth Zink creatively decorates her locker.

3. Sophomore Darcie Hare shows school spirit by wearing her Newport T-shirt.

4. Sophomore Julie Ross admires the senior hallway during Homecoming.

Reading for the future

Reading was a course devised to help students improve their skills in order to ready themselves for the future.

Rate of speed, comprehension, study skills and vocabulary were all focused upon in Developmental Reading. Each skill was picked up and studied more intensely in Advanced Reading.

Mr. Irwin Sameth, instructor, believes realization of working to improve reading can guarantee faster and more successful reading. This improvement was useful in other high school courses as well as it could be in college.

1. Sophomore Bruce Bailey stops during passing time to flash a smile.

2. Dan Cartan, sophomore, poses to smile for the camera.

3. Greg Leach, sophomore, is bundled for winter.

4. Sophomore Steve Davis shows enthusiasm during a flag football game.

Safe driving taught here

Driver's Safety was a very important class. It taught the students to be careful drivers on and off the road. The class was made up of underclassmen, primarily.

This class was different from usual Newport classes in that the state, rather than the teachers, planned the classes. There were three parts to the course: classroom sessions, simulations, and actual on-the-road driving.

Without this class students would be required by law to wait until they are 18 to obtain a driver's license.

1. Peter Koh, sophomore, listens patiently while instructions are given.

2. Sophomore Carey McCarthy frowns while assignments are being passed out.

3. Sophomore Mary Virden and friends study diligently in the Library.

4. Sharon Eide, sophomore, talks in front of the class.

Speech builds confidence

Can you talk to an audience with confidence and ease? If not, you haven't taken Speech. Besides the five to six speeches given during the semester, which include demonstration, impromptu and controversial speeches, other units are introduced as well. "These units break up the monotony of speeches," commented Mr. Bill Eyman, speech teacher. "They consist of improving listening, values clarification and the ability to deal with oneself and other people."

Mr. John Scannell, who also teaches speech, said, "Some speeches are really very interesting, such as one about a UFO sighting, one about the sensations of sky diving," and even how to waste time enjoyably!"

Mr. Eyman, Mr. Scannell, Mr. George Harshbarger and Mr. Robert Cleland all have different styles of teaching, "but at the end of the course, 80 to 90 percent of the students are glad they took it," Mr. Eyman commented.

1. Sophomore Laurie Bongard shows Fritzi Warren the new technique for cutting wood.

2. Sophomore Kelley Abbott takes time out to jot down a few notes.

3. David Lokosh enjoys a quiet conversation in the Library.

4. Sophomores Kelley Abbott, Anne Kristiansen and Emily Mabus receive tips from their art teacher. Mr. Ho.

5. Sophomore Myong-Hui Bradshaw works hard for her class.

Voc Ed builds a reputation

If you want a good lead into the study of carpentry, the cabinetry class that Mr. Earle Carter teaches would be the one for you to choose. The class concentrates on dry wall and electrical work. Mr. Carter thought this class was more interesting than exciting and that it would be a good basis for the future.

The vocational carpentry goal was to expose the students to as many construction trades as possible in relation to the construction industry. Carpentry, dry walling, plumbing, electrical work and painting were all included.

Each individual was given the opportunity to explore each different trade. This enabled them to find the type of trade to rely on for skillful employment.

Mr. Richard Robinson had 18 students that came from three different schools to participate in the class. They explored light-frame construction and also worked with architectural plans.

1. Sophomore Kristi Uht uses her study hall constructively.

2. Sophomore Nancy Brown checks out her locker at passing time.

3. Sophomore Jason Woods listens attentively to the teacher.

4. Sophomore Debbie Spencer is caught by surprise.

5. Sophomore Holly Heidtmann waits for a friend at her locker.

Cooks bake up a storm

You're hungry and you need good food to last you through the day. Who's going to prepare it? The cooks!

Each day, almost two hours before school begins, ten ladies arrive to prepare an appetizing, nutritious lunch. In the type A lunches, requirements such as three ounces of protein, 3/4 cup of vegetables or fruit, one piece of bread with butter and a carton of milk are met. Frequently, ice-cream or cookies are added.

"A la carte lunches are also offered, including just about everything the students might want, with the exception of, naturally, junk food," commented Ms. Peggy Berry, head cook.

The cooks' primary objective was nutrition, but making meals attractive and holding the price range within the students' budget was also a major concern.

1. Writing One provides entertainment for sophomores Michelle Yeager and Vicki Wang.

2. Kent Faulkner, sophomore, constructively makes use of the Library.

3. Sophomore Jennifer Rigdon contemplates her next project in Jewelry Design.

4. Sophomores Ann Kristiansen and Emily Mabus search for their roots.

5. Caught in the act of studying, sophomore Ann Lee takes a break for the camera.

Art department gains class

The Art Department came closer to its final goal of offering a varied and exciting program to students when Stained Glass was added to its curriculum.

Some of the other classes offered were Jewelry Design, Cartooning, Drawing and Painting, and Pottery.

Due to the fact that Mr. Ron Ho had returned from a sabbatical to the Far East, there were three teachers instead of the previous two. Mr. Ho taught only three classes a day of art at Newport but also taught a half day of art at Spirit Ridge Elementary School. Mr. Robert Cleland taught the cartooning class, along with other non-art classes at Newport. Mr. Jack Smith taught all of the other art classes. According to senior Mark Rutledge, "The students enjoyed the relaxed and unpressured atmosphere of their art classes."

1. Julie Ross, sophomore, takes a break in the art room.

2. Sophomores Fritzi Warren, Diana Isaiou, and Jennifer Rigdon, work on their own creations in their art class.

3. Darin Hand, sophomore, is caught by the camera while working in the library.

4. Bonnie McReynolds, sophomore, reflects upon her day at Newport.

5. Sophomore Bill Leverenz does his typical thing in the library.

Prepare for your future

The Business Education Department was at full speed, teaching business techniques. This department offered more electives than any other department, according to Mr. Allan Dormaier, head of this area.

The major goal of Business Education was to prepare all graduates to enter the working field with excellent business skills. Work experience programs were found in Distributive Education, Diversified Occupations and Cooperative Office. These classes allowed two credits to be earned, one for taking the class and one for the job the student was required to hold while enrolled in the class. The staff of these classes was constantly working with potential employers, arranging interviews for students. Also, the teachers remained in contact with the employers of the student, so all problems were handled before anything major developed.

1. Glenn Petcher, sophomore, is found studying.

2. Sophomore Kelley Abbott examines her work.

3. Sophomores Bill Leverenz, and Todd Stevenson look on in the library.

4. Chris Pearson, Brian Clearman, and Lance Richert, all sophomores, meet to do their work.

5. Sophomores Kelley Abbott and Anne Kristiansen gaze across the art room.
